
Assigning Accounts to a New Sales Org

Overview

An account may be reassigned to a different sales org. This can occur when the account needs to be serviced by different sales team assigned to a sales org or when the account merges with another etc. As a Sales Ops user, you can assign an account to a new sales org and inactivate the previously assigned sales org. If you were to assign a new sales org in this situation, follow Scenario 1.

In the case of RC HT customers, you may also encounter an inactive org or inactive user assigned to that org, given this situation follow Scenario 2.

To inactivate the sales org and reassign the account to a new sales org

You need to verify that account in Sales Conductor is shared with the new role after the new sales org is assigned.

1. Log into the RC HT as Admin user.
2. Locate the account for which you need to inactivate the Sales Org.
Note that this account should be previously synchronized to RC HT.
3. Inactivate the org to which it is currently assigned
4. In RC HT, locate the user that has the same territory assignment as the Sales Org in Step 2.
5. Remove the user territory assignment of the inactivated org. Note that this is performed automatically in RC HT when the territory org is inactivated.
User gets automatically inactivated once the territory he is assigned to is inactivated. This occurs automatically in RC HT if the user has only been assigned to the inactivated territory org.
6. In RC HT reassign the user to a new territory.
Once the user is assigned to the new territory, the user becomes active.

7. Reassign customer (from Step 2) to new Sales Org in RC HT (same org as the territory to which the user is reassigned).
Note that the previous org is automatically removed from the customer Sales Org field since it has been inactivated.
8. Log into Sales Conductor as an Admin user.
The Admin user will need to update Sales Conductor.
9. Update the user's role (same as Step 4 user) from the old territory to the new territory.
10. Verify that the account is shared with the new role in Sales Conductor.
11. Re login as the updated user, verify that you can see the account under the new territory.
12. Verify that the user has access to the account in RC HT.
